Extended April 2018 Economic and Fiscal Outlook

In January 2018, the PBO provided guidelines about how it plans to implement the financial costing of election campaign proposals made by political parties during the 120 days before the 2019 general election.¹

Prior to the start of the pre-election period, in early June 2019, the PBO will publish a 10-year economic and fiscal outlook based on an update of its April 2019 Economic and Fiscal Outlook (EFO).

This outlook is intended to provide a more comprehensive fiscal planning framework and to more transparently account for the budgetary implications of multi-year spending commitments, such as defence procurement and infrastructure investments.²

The extended outlook will include measures announced in Budget 2019. Similar to our Budget 2018 costing exercise, the PBO will also provide independent line-item costing of measures in Budget 2019 along with its 10-year outlook.³

Political parties may choose to remove some, or all, of the costed Budget 2019 measures to construct their own fiscal planning frameworks.⁴ In addition, political parties may choose to use the economic and fiscal projections in preparing their own cost estimates.

In preparation for the 2019 pre-election period, the PBO is taking this opportunity to produce an extended outlook and line-item costing. The PBO encourages parliamentarians and their political parties to provide feedback regarding this initiative.

The following tables extend the economic and fiscal projections in PBO's April 2018 Economic and Fiscal Outlook, as well as its costing of Budget 2018 measures.

To produce the outlook beyond calendar year 2023 and fiscal year 2022-23, PBO used the same macroeconomic, fiscal and policy costing models and assumptions that it used for its April 2018 EFO and Budget 2018 costing exercise.

2. The choice of a 10-year projection horizon follows the U.S. Congressional Budget Office (CBO).
3. See PBO's April 2018 report Costing Budget 2018 Measures. Available at: http://www.pbo-dpb.gc.ca/web/default/files/Documents/Reports/2018/Costing%20Budget%202018/Budget%202018_EN_Final.pdf.
4. Consistent with PBO's Budget 2018 costing exercise, the costing of Budget 2019 measures will not include the impact on public debt charges. Consequently, measures that are removed or added to PBO's fiscal outlook will not reflect the impact on public debt charges or any potential corresponding macroeconomic impact. That said, to a first approximation, the resulting fiscal outlook should provide a reasonable basis for fiscal planning for political parties.
